I have been the director of a small, private, Catholic University Counseling Center since 2017. During my brief tenure we have been faced with many of the same challenges as other colleges and Universities such as increasing numbers and limited services. One of our biggest challenges has been to take stock of the resources we have, can provide and hone our scope to best serve our students on campus. Colleagues share that they appreciate my no-nonsense, direct style of communication and transparency. I come to higher education with slightly different view as I was ‘raised’ in my social work career in community mental health, federal government experience at Veteran Affairs and adjunct teaching for the prior 20+ years. I value the collaboration and generosity of the AUCCCD group and believe I would lend a perspective unique to the board as I have a wealth of experience in private and public sectors, macro and micro realms of care and have come to understand the challenges of higher education through a smaller University setting.
